

FAMILY CHANGES: POLICY IMPLICATIONS FOR SOCIAL SECURITY AND LONG-TERM CARE

June 22, 2004, Tuesday
9:00 am – 11:00 am
Hawaii State Capitol Room 309

Presented by Yung-Ping Chen, Ph.D.

Frank J. Manning Eminent Scholar's Chair in Gerontology,
University of Massachusetts Boston, and Board Member,
National Council on the Aging

Dramatic changes in family patterns during the last 30 years will affect the scope and value of Social Security protection as well as the delivery and funding of elder care. A number of policy proposals will be discussed in the presentation. Professor Chen is a fellow of the Gerontological Society of America and a founding member of the National Academy of Social Insurance. He participated in the 1971, 1981, and 1995 White House Conferences on Aging and the 1998 White House Conference on Social Security. His research focuses on five interrelated areas in old-age economic security: Social Security financing, private pension coverage, funding long-term care, home equity conversion/ reverse mortgages, and gradual/phased retirement.

Sponsored by the Center on the Family of the University of Hawaii, Executive Office on Aging, and the Women's Caucus of the Hawaii State Legislature.
